Creating Opportunities For Success

KickStart Your Career!

Morgan Autism Center and EvoLibri Consulting have joined forces to present a new class for Spectrum teens and young adults ages 17-25. This six-week class will start by helping students define what their passions are and how these can be translated into a career, and then move through exercises and activities that will help each student define what is realistic and practical for him/her to achieve based on motivation, ability, and current and projected job market.

- Career Assessment – each student will be assessed using the Strong Interest Inventory, Myers-Briggs Type Indicator, and proprietary assessments.
- Career Exploration – what jobs are good for what types of people, and what jobs are hiring now and in the projected future?
- Training and Education – how much education or training is needed for different types of jobs? How can students realistically attain this education and training? What is ‘stepped education’ and how might it apply?
- Desired Lifestyle – what is important to the student in the long run? Making lots of money, or doing something that is fulfilling? How do our values impact our career choices?
- Making a Good Career Choice – how do students make a wise choice about their careers? What factors are most important? How can students ‘grow’ their careers over time?
- Getting a Job – what is ‘pre-employment’ and why is it important? How do students create a resume that sells my skills? How do they get that first job?

Each student will receive a Career Plan Portfolio at the end of the class, outlining the steps needed to achieve his/her career goals.
